SATURDAY SELECTS

Week of May 8, 2017

by Monica Khemsurov

A weekly Saturday recap to share with you our favorite links, discoveries, exhibitions, and more from the past seven days. This week: one epic red-glass dining table, two Max Lamb sightings, and three drop-dead beautiful store interiors, including the new Phillip Lim in L.A. (above).

The London designer Marcin Rusak — known for making furniture out of flowers embedded in black resin — is having his first U.S. solo show at Twenty First Gallery, on view until June 16. He's debuting two new pieces, a sculpture and this sinuous sideboard cabinet — those are actual leaves in there, fyi.
